4th DAY CUSCO / VINICUNCA OR RAINBOW MOUNTAIN.

03.30 Am. Pick up from your hotel, departure from Cusco to the Collasuyo, ancient Inca network road call Capac Nam, important part of all Tawantinsuyo, the 4 regions in which the Inca Empire was dived. You will arrive at Checacupe, and continue to the Pitumarca District, afterward, passing beautiful landscapes and valleys of Pitumarca arriving to the native village of Japura, and Hachipacha inhabited by native Quechuas; arrive at the road stop place Quechuyno; here you have a good breakfast to be ready for the what is coming.

The trip continues this time walking among beautiful landscapes, lagoons, where alpacas, llamas, vicuñas, the Andean puma, Andean birds and condors is live in their natural habitat. The hike takes some 3 1/2 hrs approx. until reach to VINICUNCA-PASSO at 5200 meters, some 15600 fts. from where you will observe the awesome view of the Cerro Colorado, showing its magical colors that only exists in this place of Peru. Around this scenery you will observe the Ausangate Mountain. This is the highest peak in the Southern Andes with a height of 6372 meters above sea level. In the Inca mythology, this mountain and the nearby lakes – among them, the Sivinacocha, stands out from where the masculine energy that fertilizes the sacred earth, the mother Pachamama is born; then after a long run, the waters are lost in the unknown lands of the Amazon to return with the rains to fill the lakes and glaciers every night, converted into the river of stars or Willkamayu known in the western as the Milky Way, resembling and refreshing your cosmo vision. The Community of Chillca constituted by shepherds of llamas and alpacas is known as the guardian of these Andean places; every year, in the first days of June, on the north side of the Ausangate is celebrated since immemorial times, the feast of Qoyllur Rit'i (Quechua: "star of snow") the faith shown is impressed; dancers arrive from different parts of Peru, before the feast of Corpus Christi, thousands of persons, most of them Quechuas speakers, make the pilgrimage to the Lord of Qoyllur Rit'i painted in the temple of Sinakara on a rock. This pilgrimage was included in the Representative List of Heritage. After a long photo shoot, we will return back to Hachipacha where an energetic lunch is waiting for you, and then head towards Cusco arriving approx., at 18:00 hrs. here is an extra payment due is an additional tour. Cost is 40 per person.
